Choosing New Teachers

Manager A: Hello, Manager B. Let's talk about new teachers.

Manager B: Yes. We have three candidates.

Manager A: Who is the first one?

Manager B: Her name is Sarah. She is from Canada. She has experience. She taught kids, which is good.

Manager A: Sarah, who taught kids, sounds good. What about the second candidate?

Manager B: His name is Mark. He is from the UK. He has a degree. He is very friendly, which is important.

Manager A: Mark, who is friendly, is also good. And the third?

Manager B: Her name is Lisa. She is new. She has a certificate, which is necessary. She wants to learn a lot.

Manager A: Lisa, who wants to learn, is interesting. We need a teacher who is good with young students.

Manager B: Yes. Sarah, who taught young learners, is a strong choice. Mark, who has a degree, is also strong.

Manager A: We need to choose one teacher. It is a big decision.

Manager B: Yes. The person who we choose must be excellent.
